Oil City Derick.

It is the opinion of geologists, who have made a study of the situation, that the oil belt at present exciting such interest in Texas extends from Beaumont down the gulf coast to the mouth of the Rio Grande and far into Mexico. Should this prove true, economic conditions in the Republic dependent upon coal as fuel would be revolutionized. If the production and the use of fuel becomes extensive enough, the price of coal would necessarily be materially reduced and new stimulus given to the manufacturing interests of the country. It has been estimated that three barrels of oil of the Beaumont grade are equal to one ton of coal for steam purposes and already the lignite coal producers of Texas are complaining that manufacturers are refusing to renew contracts for fuel. Many of the large dealers of the States are securing agencies for this oil and in many manufacturing towns of Texas oil has been substituted for lignite. Numerous railroads of the vicinity are also preparing for operating with oil.

The superior advantages possessed in the way of shipping oil by the gulf coast places them ahead of all competition. This oil can reach shipping by pipe line from a very short distance on level ground, while oil from the Pennsylvania and Ohio wells must be piped from 300 to 400 miles over two ranges of mountains in order to reach the Atlantic ports.

In this connection it might be stated that the Department of Public Works has entered into a contract with Pablo Martinez del Rio for the exploitation of the oil industry of the Republic, of which the following are the principal clauses:

"Don Pablo Martinez del Rio, of the City of Mexico, or the company or companies which he may organize, oblige themselves to establish in the Republic the business of boring for oil, erecting the works and constructing all buildings plant and other installations necessary for the business in question and for the exploitation of the deposits or wells that may be discovered, for which purpose they will employ the most modern machinery and processes.

"The concessionaire obliges himself to begin the work of boring wells and other operations looking to the discovery of oil within six months from the date of this connection, May 18, 1901.

"Within two years counted from the same date the concessionaire agrees that he will have bored at least 20 wells and that he will have invested therein, as well as in the plant, for the conveyance of the product, and general expenses of the business the sum of $200,000 at least. In the eight following years the concessionaire binds himself to invest at least the sum of $50,000 annually in the boring of wells, construction of plants, buildings, installations and general expenses of the business so that the capital to be invested by the company during the ten years of the life of the concession will be $600,000.

"If the government needs oil the company will sell the same to it at a reduction of ten per cent on the wholesale price to the public.

The concessionaire may import duty free on a single occasion the machinery, apparatus, utensils, and building materials necessary for the establishment of the industry and the erection of the building subject to the approval of the Department of Fomento, and under bond in each case to be cancelled as soon as the machinery shall have been put up and shall have been proved that the apparatus, utensil or material has been employed.

"For ten years counted from the date of the promulgation of this contract the capital invested by the company in the establishment of the exploitation of the industry shall be exempted from every direct Federal tax, but the concessionaire or company shall remain subject to the payment of the stamp tax."
